STATE OF WISCONSIN.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

BY THE GOVERNOR.

Since the early days the Republic it has been the grateful pleasure and custom of the people to assemble once a year, and by thanksgiving, praise and feasting, render unto the Giver of All Good a sincere expression of gratitude for His unfeeling care and goodness.

Now, therefore, I, William D. Hoard, Governor of the State of Wisconsin, in conformity with this most fitting custom and the proclamation of the president of the United States, do appoint Thursday, November 28th, 1889, as a day of thanksgiving.

I further do recommend that on that day the people of Wisconsin abstain from all labor and give thanks to Almighty God, by appropriate exercises in their places of worship and their homes, for the abundant mercies which we have received at His hands in the past year.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State of Wisconsin to be affixed. Done at the capitol, in [Great Seal] Madison, this 7th day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine.

WILLIAM D. HOARD.

By the Governor:

ERNEST G. THAYER, Secretary of State.

SHALL PROHIBITION BE GIVEN UP.

Constitutional prohibition has been tried in Iowa for five years. During that time it has not been wholly a success. In the river towns and cities on the Mississippi, and, for instance, in Council Bluffs on the Missouri, the law has done very little to suppress whisky selling. In the rural part of the state the law has been generally enforced. The people in an agricultural community are law abiding; but this cannot be said of a majority of the people who settle in river cities, and where the law to be observed is that prohibiting the sale of liquor.

The late election in Iowa was, in some degree, a voice against prohibition but not entirely. But there has been such a failure of the law in the larger cities of the state that the Hon. S. J. Kirkwood, who was governor from 1860 to 1864, and secretary of the interior under Grant, has turned against prohibition; and it is likewise rumored that the Hon. John A. Kasson, ex-congressman and ex-minister to Germany and Austria, has declared against constitutional prohibition because it does not prohibit. Then comes the Des Moines Register, a paper that has defended prohibition from the beginning, with an editorial suggesting that some other plan than that of prohibition must be discovered for controlling the liquor traffic. The Register says:

Now, looking the question fairly in the face without once referring to the late election, what are you going to do with these conditions? For five years they have entirely ignored the law. No man living so far as we know has suggested but one way of enforcing the law in those counties where public sentiment is strongly opposed to prohibition. That way is by the un-American, unwise, and repugnant employment of superior force. By taking away from the right of local self-government, by declaring them a state of rebellion, by the use of a state constabulary or militia, the law might be enforced in that way. But a majority of the people do not approve of it, and will not voluntarily respect it. But would that pay? Could the state afford to take that course to enforce a law which is but a means to an end, but not an end? Men may honestly differ, and yet be good men and good citizens. We have not found any one yet whose opinion is entitled to serious respect who would urge such a course to be taken.

The Register then asks if the state can afford on the other hand to tolerate this open defiance of authority in the anti-prohibition counties. The singular spectacle is presented of the high and low water mark of moral sentiment in the same state, where in one part saloons are rigidly closed and in another part they are left wide open, without any attempt to close them. The Register does not propose to let go prohibition. It insists on making no surrender of the principles where the people believe that it is the wisest and the best method of promoting temperance. The Register then states its plan as follows:

But leaving prohibition as the general law, permit it to be modified by counties where the great majority of voters prefer some other way. Throw the burden of proof that public sentiment favors some other method upon those who claim it does. Compel the license men to procure the signatures of at least two-thirds of the voters of a county as a petition for a special election before a regular election. Vote on this subject can be held. Limit the time for such elections so that they may not occur sooner than once in two or three years. Then, if a special election is ordered, at which the sole issue shall be change from prohibition to high license, the sum being fixed by the legislature, require that more than a mere majority, say at least two-thirds of the voters of the county shall vote for the change, thus insuring in either event a majority sentiment strong enough to sustain and enforce the law, whatever it is. This plan would leave undisturbed all the counties that do not now have saloons, and do not want them. It would be impossible to secure in those counties a majority of voters to petition even for an election on this subject, and so the prohibitory law would remain in force the same as now. But in the few counties where the majority of the people do not want prohibition and will not enforce it there would be a legal and decent way for them to change to license and to such legal restraints and regulations as the state law in that event would throw around the liquor traffic.

This is the plan proposed by Dr. Lyman Abbott and many other prominent men for states where the sentiment is against a prohibition law. It is the plan proposed for Illinois by Mr. Moody, and it seems to be the only practical plan of controlling or practically restricting the sale and the evil of intoxicating drinks.

AMAZING PROGRESS.

In the olden days, when a southern emperor had to celebrate his jolly events he "killed a nigger." Recent events have somewhat modified that rude form of exhilaration, and now even the commonwealth of Virginia is proudly flying aloft the banner of triumphant democracy she crystallizes her joy in a resolution of the democratic committee to Richmond asking the discharge of all colored men now in the employ of the city government. The world moves on. From killing a "nigger" on sight to merely bouncing him from office is a giant stride in the right direction, upon which we congratulate the democracy of Virginia.—Globe Democrat.

This progress of the Virginia democracy is something akin to the progress made by the democracy in other states. If you want to confound a democrat ask him to give an illustration of the progressive strides of the democratic party during the past thirty years. It is necessary to speak of the history of the party with some degree of caution and even tenderness if you do not want to throw a democrat in an unpleasant condition of mind. In fact, some democrats are entitled to private hospitality in speaking of their party's history, for it has gone on from one degree of blundering to another without their wish until it is burdened with a burdensome history.

But the democrats of Virginia have established a line of progress which the Globe-Democrat did not mention. What negroes they could not drive from the polls by intimidation, were captured by furnishing them with an oyster supper.

It was a brilliant scheme. It worked well. A Virginia negro can be reached through his stomach. An oyster stew will capture a ballot most tenaciously, and in this peculiar mode of campaigning, the democrats got ahead of the republicans.

Everybody will admit that it is a better way than violence or intimidation.

Nowhere else can the laborer, the wide-awake, the industrious, the high, the low, the educated, and even the ignorant find such a field for making life a success. There is a living for every man if he will make it. With free churches, free schools, a free press, free expression of opinion, the right to vote in the government, fair trials, fair treatment for the lowest to become the highest—what more can a man with an honest intention and laudable desire to be a good citizen wish?—Baltimore American.

Happy is the man who can appreciate these things! Everybody can except a free trader. He doesn't see anything good in the splendid triumph of protection. He is bewildered over the marvelous progress made by the country since the tariff law was enacted in 1861. As an American he should be delighted over it; but as a free trader he is staggered, and simply affirms that the country has gone on marvelously even when "handicapped with protection!" He is a good deal like the Birmingham Age-Herald which croaks in the following straw: "Every mile of railroad in Alabama since 1875 is due to Birmingham and blessed assurance of democratic government." But the Age-Herald was a protection paper under the first year of Birmingham's wonderful progress, but it must say something now and then to warn the hear of the democracy.

There is an item going the rounds of the press that William Sprague, the war governor of Rhode Island, and for sometime United States senator, is now living in poverty. When he married Kate Chase, the most beautiful woman in all Washington, Sprague was immensely rich. No young man in New England began life with brighter prospects than he. He was governor before he completed his thirtieth year. He was United States senator when only 33. By investments in manufacturing he became a millionaire, but his prosperity seemed to be as changeable as the clouds and his popularity seemed like an accident. A divorce broke up his home years ago, his riches took wing to a palatial home with its splendid furnishings passed out of his hands, and to-day he is a wreck in fortune, in home, in body, and in ambition. It fortune has dealt hard with William Sprague, it is because he dealt hard, very hard, with fortune.

Ex-Senator Riddelberg was so delighted over General Mahone's defeat, that he took the pledge for one month. It is a great wonder that he didn't do the other thing.

Hood's Saraparilla cures catarrh by expelling impurity from the blood, which is the cause of the complaint. Give it a trial.

Proposed Railroad Consolidation.

OMAHA, Nov. 18.—It is learned that a meeting was held in Boston Saturday at which officials of the Union Pacific and Denver, Texas & Fort Worth virtually agreed upon the consolidation of the latter road with the Union Pacific branch lines in Colorado. This action must be ratified by the directors and stockholders of both roads, but there is little question that this will be done.

Officers of the National Grange.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 18.—At the meeting of the National grange the following officers were elected: Master J. H. Brigham, Ohio; overseer, Hiram Hawley, Alabama; lecturer, Mortimer Whitehead, New Jersey; steward, E. W. Davis, California; chaplain, A. J. Rose, Texas; treasurer, F. M. McDowell, New York; secretary, John Trimble, Washington.

Catarrh

Is a constitutional and not a local disease, and therefore it cannot be cured by local applications. It requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla, which, working through the blood, eradicates the impurity which causes and promotes the disease, and effects a permanent cure. Thousands of people testify to the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

L. KOEFFE MISSING.

He Is Charged With Forgery and Embezzlement.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Albert Koeffe, a moulder employed in a foundry, and until a short time ago residing at 341 Sedgwick street, is missing from Chicago, and the members of Bethoven Lodge Knights of Pythias and several friends are looking for him.

Koeffe has been issued charging him with forgery and embezzlement.

The charge of embezzlement is based on a shortage of $300 in Mr. Koeffe's accounts and that of forgery is based upon the issue

by him of papers to Mrs. Barney Brachtendorf, entitling her to $3,000 insurance upon her husband, who died several years ago. Koeffe was a member of the lodge, but as he had consumption was never taken into the endowment rank, to which all members must belong

if they want life insurance.

FATAL SALOON ROW.

The Saloon-Keeper Killed and Another

Man Dangerously Wounded.

WEST POINT, Neb., Nov. 18.—Night

Policeman Maurice Fuerman shot and instantly killed Carl Schwenz in Schwenk's saloon at 12:30 this morning. Andrew Geissen is lying at the point of death from pistol shots received in the struggle.

The tragedy grew out of a feud which has existed for some time between Fuerman and Schwenz. The latter entered the saloon and was ordered out by the proprietor, but refused to go. Schwenz then started toward Fuerman, who drew a revolver and shot Schwenz twice, instantly killing him. Geissen started to seize the revolver in his body, fatally wounding him. Fuerman was hurried out of town by the sheriff to prevent a lynching.

SHOT the Wrong Man.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 18.—Edmund Griggs was shot, second night at the Central Hotel, and died about 12 o'clock last evening by Henry Robinson, a colored waiter, two persons became involved in a fight with John Davison, another colored waiter, and in the melee shot Griggs by mistake.

ROBBED the Labor Union.

TROY, Ind., Nov. 18.—Fred Souther was treasurer of the local branch of the International Cigarmakers' Union.

He left some time ago taking with him

$100 of the union's money and was arrested at New Orleans and brought back.

The jury in his case, late Saturday night,

found him guilty and gave him a year in the penitentiary.

KILLED While Hunting.

TROY, Ind., Nov. 18.—While a party of four boys were rabbit hunting near

Atlanta, a small village in the southern edge of this county, yesterday, the 14-year-old son of J. H. Orr, an Arcadia druggist, had his head completely blown off by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of David Dickover, a lad about the same age. The boys were climbing a fence at the time of the accident.

Thos. H. Mount, of the firm of Bowles, Hadden & Co., left this morning for an extended trip through Indiana and Ohio in the interest of the firm.

N. Fredericks has heard from his son, Mr. Chas. Brockhaus, that he is sick.

To-morrow morning the public social dancing party of the Janesville Concordia Society at their hall in the Mitchell block. Tickets are only fifty cents, and all who attend are assured of a pleasant time.

The next Terpsichorean Club party will be given at Columbia hall on Wednesday evening, Nov. 20th. Smith & Anderson's orchestra will furnish the music. All members are requested to be present to elect officers.

Late on Saturday evening it became known to the Forest Park denizens that somewhere in the neighborhood of fifty-one summers had passed over the head of their neighbor, Captain Pliny Nicros cross, and that the event was being quietly celebrated in the Norcross domicile. They accordingly hastily organized a second-hand party, with Ike Brownell as leader and operator of a new wind instrument similar in appearance to a discarded campaign tin horn. The Norcross home was surrounded, and after playing the introductory of the first tune, the large doors of the hospitable home were thrown open and the jolly captain interrupted further musical demonstration by insisting that the party "come in and tune up." Ike "caught on" and the party followed. It is expressing it very mildly when the Gazette says they experienced a royal happy time.

TUBACO FAKE IN JANESEVILLE

Arrangements are about completed for publishing a paper in this city devoted to the interests of all who are interested in the culture and buying and selling of tobacco, also kindred industries. The newspaper is to be called the Janesville Tobacco Leaf. The editor is to be J. F. Wiley, well known in the tobacco circles of this city and vicinity as "Havana," he having reported the tobacco market of this city for the Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter for several years. He has had fifteen years experience as a tobacco grower, thus having a practical training which will be of great advantage to him as an editor of a tobacco paper. Janesville has many advantages as a tobacco market over any other city of this state, and the newspaper will endeavor to bring these facts prominently before the eastern dealers which will have the effect of bringing many of them here who formerly went to other places. The tobacco business brings a great deal of money to this city, and the merchants and business men should act liberally toward the young paper.

ANGUISH UNPEAKABLE.

Is endured by the victims of inflammatory rheumatism, and any form of the disease may reach that agonizing phase or attack the heart and cause death. Unhappily they feel this preliminary twinge seldom realize this. Like other possibly dangerous maladies, rheumatism is often disregarded at the outset. Well will it be for him if this brief notion shall serve as a warning of future peril or pain to a reader troubled with rheumatism. The proper sequel will be an instantaneous resort to the great preventative depurative nostrum, Epsom salts. This is a most popular and effective remedy. It is free from the objections attendant to depurative poisons liable to be taken in more than the infinitesimal dose. The Bitter's conqueror, malaria, indigestion, liver and kidney troubles.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.

NOVEMBER 18, 1889.

Several judgments rendered by the court.

Saturday afternoon the divorce action of Ella A. Sherwood against Frank Sherwood, came on for hearing. The defendant failed to appear. The testimony on the part of plaintiff tended to show that the defendant was given very much to getting drunk, and was frequently extremely violent in his treatment of her. Judgment of divorce was granted the plaintiff.
